Feix Most Valuable As Western Wins Bowl Game

In possibly one of the greatest all around team victories ever staged by a Western football team, the Hilltoppers of Coach Jack Clayton rolled with surprising ease over Arkansas State 34-19 in the Refrigerator Bowl last day afternoon at Evansville.

Western was not to be denied once they started moving. Over 9,000 fans looked on with awe after the spirited Hilltoppers spotted Stat, an early touchdown and then operating like a precision machine, turned the game into a 34-6 rout before Clayton filled the game with substitutes.

The Topper's offensive line out-charged the Indians all afternoon to continually shake backs loose for long gallops and when State was pulled in Feix sent his ends and backs out to grab his deadly accurate passes.

Sums team's loss

Arkansas Coach Frosty England summed his team's loss like this: "Our line hadn't been outcharged all year, not even by Mississippi State." Mississippi State staged a late rally to pull away to a 41-14 victory over England's club in mid-season for the Indian's only defeat prior to this one. And as for the Topper's Little All-American back, Jimmy Feix, England asserted this: "The kid's great, we worked two weeks to defense against him and he still gained 170 yards on us."

Western won the loss and surprisingly elected to kick. This bit of strategy looked like it backfired, for 11 plays and four minutes and 10 seconds later State was on top 6-0. Little Halfback Billy Daniels wrecked the Toppers with his sweep and scouted down the sidelines for the last 10 yards to spearhead a 73 yard drive.

Then Western began to move. On the first play from scrimmage, Fullback Gene McFadden shook loose after a key block by Bill Ploumies and went 55 yards to the Indian 22, but the Toppers were stopped on the 14.

Here, State's series of plays went for naught and Bob Reid kick out to the Toppers 29 with a 48 yard boot. Spearheaded by a 26 yard Feix to Stevens pass, two fourth down smashes by Watson, the first

Military Ball Big Event On Hill Tonight

Western's nineteenth annual military ball is to be the main event on the hill tonight and is one of the semester's most elaborate social functions. Larry Foline will be behind the baton to furnish that smooth dance music topped by the lovely vocalizations of Cathy Cardovan, "Little Miss Personality."

Each year the Army and Air Force units of the ROTC sponsor this event and have charge of the entire program. Committees and individuals are assigned to the various phases of planning and preparation.

For the past few days the gymnasium has been undergoing a decorative change under the watchful eye of Joe Teborek, chairman of the decorations committee. Decorating is probably the greatest undertaking of the preparation and to facilitate the speediness and beauty of the final achievement, hundreds of cadets work together from start to finish.

The high point of the ball will be the crowning ceremonies at approximately 10:30. The queen of the ball will reign over the event with the cadet commanding officer. This year as in the past, the queen and her court will be honored by the sabre team directed by cadet Major Kenneth D. Gordon. Members of the team are selected from both Army and Air Force cadets. This year's team members are Kenneth Gordon, H. D. Wilson, George Herndon, James McMasers, John Harris, Robert Leach, James Copper, Tom Baird, Jim Phillips, Bobby Rigby, and Paul Johnston.

Jimmy Feix, AF cadet major, group adjutant, will act as master of ceremonies for the occasion.

Radio features on the ball were presented on both local stations last Wednesday by a group of cadets.

Tickets may still be purchased at the door for $4.00, but table reservations are apt to be sold out by 9 p.m., starting time for the ball.

Freshmen Elect Stanley Street As 1952-53 President

Stanley Street, of Somerset, was elected president of the freshman class for 1952-53 at the November class meeting. A physical education major, Street plans to be an athletic coach.

Van T. Vance of Park City was elected vice-president. His objective is the study of law.

Charlotte Smith of Bowling Green is secretary. She is preparing to teach.

Ellen O'Keefe of Louisville, treasurer of the class, has the Arts and Science degree as her objective.

James Robey of Owensboro is sergeant-at-arms. His major field is geography.

Twenty-Four Seniors Are Elected To "Who's Who In American Colleges"

Pictured above are twenty of the twenty-four seniors named to the 1952-53 edition of Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.

The 1952-53 edition of Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities will contain the names of twenty-four Western seniors, who are all from Kentucky except one from New York.

This year, as usual, seniors were nominated to candidacy for Who's Who by the faculty on the basis of academic standing and extra-curricular activities. The students and faculty then voted for ten candidates by ballot at chapel on Wednesday, November 5. The twenty-four candidates who received the greatest number of votes on this ballot were elected.

The list, in alphabetical order includes:

Bivins Leads Senior Class

By MARY DEAN PEDIGO

William Bivin, a senior from Paducah, is leading the senior class this year. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl H. Bivin, he is the youngest of four children.

Bill says the class needs more of what it has! Enthusiastic student participation in campus activities. According to the new president, a class organization is not an end in itself, but a medium through which the students make effective personal contact with the overall campus program. We have more enthusiastic participation in this class than we have had in the past, and we are going to extend this participation. Bill plans to achieve this goal by providing opportunities for every senior to participate in activities.

Publicity is going to be used as our key to the class. Through publicity we will maintain constant contact with every possible phase of campus life, as well as personal senior contact.

Our class meeting programs will be short, interesting, and entertaining. Our over-all program will be geared to fit the over all campus life.

When I asked Bill what he liked about Western, he remarked that the "Spirit of Western" opened

The bi-annual presentation of Handel's oratorio, "The Messiah," will be given at 7:30 p.m. on Sunday, December 14, in Van Meter Auditorium. It will be presented by the College Chorus of 130 voices, accompanied by members of the Western Symphony Orchestra. The program will be one of the main events presented by the music department this year.

Claude Rose, of the music faculty, will conduct the performance. Mr. Rose, who has been the choral director for eight years, has produced many fine programs.

and William Miller, also Western students, will sing the bass solos.

This year's performance of "The Messiah" continues the custom of the chorus of presenting this great oratorio every two years at Christmas time, as one of the college's contributions to the local observance of the Christmas Season.

A new chorus, entitled "Lift Up Your Heads," will be given, and Mr. Pearson will introduce a new solo to the list of numbers to be performed in this production.

The performance will be concluded with the singing of the "Hallelugh Chorus," during which the audience will be asked to stand in tribute to this inspiring work.

Officers of the chorus are: William Link, president; Seymour Spiegelman, vice-president; Martha Wade, secretary-treasurer; Norma

Jean Ruble and Jim Poteet, librarians; and Miss Mary Chisholm, music faculty member, accompanist.

Merry But Sane

One Holiday week end has just rolled by and on December 19, all of us on the Hill will pack our luggage to head home again for Christmas. There will be much excitement and happiness over those days of festivity if death or injury doesn't step in to mar the joy.

Over 37,000 traffic accident deaths were reported for 1951 in the nation. During this same year, over a million people were injured in motor vehicle accidents. This year the total accidents involving injuries and deaths may even be higher. They can be lessened through careful driving.

Small chances can make such big crashes. That indifferent passing of a car on a non-pass strip of highway, excessive speeds in crowded zones, that one last holiday drink before leaving for home—these conditions lead to crippling injuries and deaths.

Have a merry Christmas and New Year, but drive safely home to enjoy it. Remember that traffic signs mean caution, and that speed is a matter of conditions depending on the weather, traffic, and the road. The Lumbermens Mutual Casualty Company reports that drivers can reduce 90 per cent of all accidents by increasing travel time 10 per cent; so drive safely—and enjoy the holidays.

Remember — death is so permanent.

Musical Notes

By Martha Wade

The Western Band led the Jaycee's Santa Claus parade December 1. The parade began at Bowling Green High school, wound around the square, and ended back at the school.

Vocalists are warming up for the presentation of "The Messiah" by Handel. Both the College Chorus and Orchestra will participate. Joint rehearsals began last Monday in preparation for the big day—December 14.

The big climax for this year's Marching Band came last Sunday with the trip to the Refrigerator Bowl at Evansville. The day-long trip left many band members tired and with bad colds, but all seemed to enjoy the trip immensely. Incidentally, the three band buses were escorted through Evansville by a police escort.

The many high school students and directors who were at Western for the three day Orchestra Clinic and All-State Orchestra commented several times on the friendliness of the Western students they encountered. Western has a reputation for friendliness which we are glad is being maintained.

The annual Band Christmas party is in the final planning stages. Plenty of fun and refreshments are planned for the members and their guests who attend. The Music department is glad to welcome Elmer Meyer back after being away because of a heart attack. His convalescence was rather rapid.

The College Orchestra and several small ensembles played for visiting directors during the Orchestra Clinic last week.

Merry
Christmas

Clagett's Novel Based On Extensive Research

By BOB RICHARDSON

The Crown Publishing Company of New York has recently released a new publication that should be of interest to people of Bowling Green and particularly to Westerners wherever they may be. The release is John Henry Clagett's historical novel, "Cradle of the Sun."

Mr. Clagett, a native of Bowling Green, attended Western for three years, 1933-36. His grandfather was John Henry Clagett, who taught English here on the Hill for three decades. His aunt, Miss Marjorie Clagett, is on the Foreign Language faculty at Western.

Mr. Clagett gives much credit to his grandfather who encouraged him when the younger Mr. Clagett took courses at Western. Mr. Clagett still keeps the theme which he wrote in his grandfather's classes because of the comments his grandfather had written on them. Although his major was listed as physics while he attended here, he feels that Miss Frances Richards of the English department helped to create his interest in writing. He studied journalism and advanced composition under her direction.

THE CRADLE OF THE SUN is a lusty, swashbuckling novel based on Mr. Clagett's research on Malayan Indian life, particularly its phase during the Spanish Inquisition and Conquistador days. Eastern critics have brought the book to the attention of America's reading public, and it is also being reviewed by several Kentucky newspapers.

It is written in the fictionalized manner of handling history that has become popular over the recent years. The book's hero, Juan de Moncada, is a blonde, muscular Spaniard who, after having been denounced as a heretic in Spain, leaves his homeland and sails by chance into the Yucatan country. It is in the passages concerning the hero's life in the Malayan Land that Mr. Clagett seems to find his stride and to keep up a steady pace of exciting reading.

Mr. Clagett's entry into the literary world as a writer is as interesting as any form of fiction might be. After leaving Western, he attended the Naval Academy at Annapolis, from which he was graduated in 1940. During the earlier part of World War II when the Japanese started evacuating Guadalcanal, he was serving as executive officer of Motor Squadron 2 and skipper of the PT III. While firing torpedoes at a Japanese ship, Clagett's ship was hit by a shell which set the boat on fire. Severely burned, Clagett leaped into the water and spent an unconscious night held up by his fellow shipmates, all of them fighting sharks that infested the waters close to Guadalcanal.

Mr. Clagett was so badly burned that he spent two years in the navy hospital at San Diego recuperating. During this time, he was waited upon by a nurse named Marjorie Douglas. Clagett came to the hospital in 1941. In 1943 Marjorie Douglas became Mrs. John Henry Clagett. His book is dedicated to her.

After leaving the hospital, Clagett returned to Annapolis to do graduate work and to enter upon a program to regain his health. His hand had been so badly burned that the fingers of his right hand were stiff. While at Annapolis, it was suggested to him that he exercise his fingers by typing. Rather than just type to exercise his fingers, Clagett decided to write a novel. The result of this decision was his first novel printed in excerpt form in the September issue of BLUE BOOK (1945). It was called "The Arch of Experience" and was written about his experiences in the navy.

BLUE BOOK since that time has published about a dozen of his stories. His writings have dealt with various subjects from fantasy and historical fiction to tales of life in Kentucky. Besides BLUE BOOK, the SATURDAY EVENING POST and COLLIER'S have published his works.

His novel CRADLE OF THE SUN written during the late forties, was reworked by Clagett after he entered Yale University in 1950, where he is now working on his Ph. D. After certain other revisions suggested by the Crown Publishers, the manuscript was purchased by them.

From childhood Clagett took up a sincere interest in the history of the Malayan Indians, and it is, perhaps, this interest which gives his book its greatest quality—that of the deep research involved in writing it. The passages describing the Yucatan country and the habits and customs of the Malayan Indians are written with authority and color.

The critics have both praised and censured it. The NEW YORK TIMES Book Review has called it "a historical romance of considerable impressiveness" and feels that it "achieves a reasonable unity of effect." As a discordant factor, the Times feels that crudities of the love scenes in the earlier passages occasionally mar the story, but that this factor is a mild one.

The HERALD TRIBUNE Book Review of New York says that "Mr. Clagett has told a good story, but best of all he has made us familiar with an ancient and fascinating life." The Lexington HERALD LEADER book review section states that "a great deal of the story is just like a lot of other books." You can predict almost exactly what is going to happen for the first hundred or so pages. They add that "the last part of the book really is quite entertaining reading."

Whatever may be the critics' pros and cons, John Henry Clagett is on his way to becoming an established author. He has best summed up his feelings toward his novel in the inscription written in the copy given to his mother and father. It reads, "Whatever is good in the novel, I owe to my mother and father, and none of the bad."

For those of you who will do some of your Christmas shopping in Bowling Green, may we recommend that you patronize Herald advertisers. The business houses of Bowling Green are as important to the Herald as the news side of the paper; so when you do make those purchases let the sales person know that you have read their ads in the Herald.

By BOB RICHARDSON

On occasions such as this when the edition is a holiday, I wish that this column filled with even spaced print could disappear, and this space become one huge Christmas greeting, wishing each and everyone within reading distance a big hearty "Merry Christmas". I always begin that mistletoe and tinsel feeling early. But then Christmas and the New Year holidays are folksy and warm days.

Too, round this time of year, I want to reminisce and think of all the blessings I have and those of the people around me.

I believe that most of us get a jingle-bells attitude when that long hoped-for snow falls, and spangled trees take first place in living room windows. Even Elmer, that fellow who walks about this campus only in this brain, enjoys the season.

On the morning of December 19, Elmer had just come out of his eight o'clock class feeling as low as a melted snowflake. Through some error surely not his own he had thought all period long that he was in his English class. At eight-thirty, when his French professor asked him to translate a section of Daudet's "The Last Class", he opened his eyes and smiled, saying, "Yes, ma'm, Shakespeare wrote it." As he came out the door, he was still uncertain as to whether or not he had just split an infinitive or if the professor suspected that he didn't know his French.

At ten o'clock our boy was in a higher mood. Snow was beginning to swirl down and crunch underfoot. He had just one more class for the day, and then he would be on his way home. By lunchtime, his spirits were gay. Betty, a cute little gal and a junior besides, had smiled at him in the school cafeteria. His meal of prunes and grits tasted like turkey with all the trimmings.

By four-thirty in the afternoon, Elmer was through with classes. He had completed his problem in chemistry after three months of experimenting. As he watched the snow pile up, he felt happy to know that it was frozen H₂O. From this experiment on, he would know that water is composed of two elements.

Before he packed his suitcase, he went to the library and, closing his eyes and feeling along the fiction rows, he pulled out a thin book in a red binding. His English professor had asked the class to read a novel and report on it after Christmas. This method of selection was much easier than worrying about which book to choose, especially when none of the authors sounded familiar.

He had only waited, thumb held high in the air, for fifteen minutes along the icy road when a car slid to a stop, and a bulbous nosed man yelled, "Hop in, sonny." For a second Elmer could have sworn that the driver of the automobile was old Santa himself. He crawled into the back seat, pushing aside the branches of a reclining pine tree. The car skidded off to a start, and Elmer settled back against the seat. He felt the squeakiness of the library book against his side.

Pulling the book from his topcoat pocket, he read the title along its red edge. In small gold letters it read, "Favorite Christmas Poems". Turning to the last page, Elmer skimmed the patterned lines, then closed his eyes and dozed off, thinking of the page on which was printed,

"A merry Christmas to all, and to all a good-night."

The Serge Jaroff Chorus and Dancers presented the second Community Concert of the season on Tuesday evening, December 2, in Van Meter Auditorium.

Jaroff Chorus Gives Colossal Performance

William H. Blackwell

The Serge Jaroff Male Chorus and Dancers, the original Don Cosacks, appeared in Van Meter Auditorium Tuesday evening, December 2, in the second presentation of the 1952-53 Community Concert Series.

The group presented a program that thrilled the entire audience. Every man in the large chorus sang as if he were singing only for the joy of singing. The group responded to every mood of Maestro Jaroff, their diminutive conductor whose direction was of colossal attainment whether it called for ethereal piano tones from the tenors or crashing climaxes from the bass section.

The solo voices added richly to the solid background of the chorus, and their rich full tones were awe-inspiring.

The gifted dancers, M. Dedovitch and W. Rogen, elicited a wild enthusiasm as they danced to the accompaniment of the chorus. Their Russian dancing drew loud bursts of applause from the audience.

The Jaroff chorus, following a three-month tour of Europe, opened this season in San Francisco and sang here on a trans-continental trip to New York City, where they will be heard in Carnegie Hall tonight. They also will sing a program for a Community Concerts Conference now in session in Fisher Hall while there.

Community Theater Gives Hilarious Performance

"Father of the Bride," a farce-comedy detailing the uproarious incidents involved in a family when a daughter prepares for a wedding was given Tuesday evening, December 9, at Van Meter Auditorium by the Bowling Green Community Theater.

It turned out to be a hilarious and heart-warming story of a doting father's trials and tribulations during his daughter's pre-matrimonial period. The laugh-filled action, revolved about the shocks sustained by the girl's papa from the time she announces her engagement until the moment he proudly sets out with her for the church where he is to give her away.

The play is based on the story by Edward Street which was read by more than ten million people, and which became beloved by many millions more when it was made into a movie under the same title "Father of the Bride." Now that it has been turned into still another narrative form, a play, by Caroline Francke, and is being widely presented all over America, it can be said that this homely tale of the involved and shattering experiences that overwhelm an average family in the process of marrying off a daughter, reflects something rather universal in our modern way of life, and must parallel the experiences of countless families in the same happy, if somewhat occasionally irritating, circumstances.

In the title roles of the father and the bride, Paul Clark and Ann McKeel gave warm and chuckling performances, with Rachel Loudermilk providing expert team-work as the knowing and understanding mother, who is almost equally harassed but who really enjoys having a big wedding for her child. Charles McWhorter made a likeable groom; Sam Fletcher and Gary Roberts were attractive as the bride's kid brothers; O. V. Clark and Ashley Adams turned in fine performances in comedy roles. Others contributing to the evening's entertainment included Pat Stagner, Jimmy Cowgill, Jeanne Land, Felix E. Durham, R. H. Richardson, Jr., Joe Harding, Marion Chesnut, and Mrs. Edgar Walker.

The play was directed by Russell H. Miller with taste, pace, and craftsmanship. Assisting Mr. Miller in the technical aspects of production were Mildred Hoffman, Thomas W. White, Ann McKeel, Shirley Risher, James B. Jones, Nan Doss, Kay Anderson, Joanna Maples, Paul Clements, Alice Allen, Richard Wink, Marion Chesnut, Ethel Downing, Mrs. Joe McFarland, Mrs. Jones Mercer, Kathryn Laverly, Mrs. Edgar Walker, Charlotte Vance, and Mary Ferguson.

Ronnie Carnes, BS '52, has accepted a position with the Carbide and Carbon Chemicals Company at Paducah.

Mr. Carnes is a former Herald reporter.

23 High Schools Take Part In All State Orchestra

By William E. Mackwell

Robert Whitney, conductor of the Louisville Symphony Orchestra, was the guest conductor of the All-State High School Orchestra, that was assembled on Western's campus last Thursday, Friday, and Saturday.

Twenty-three high schools were represented by 110 students who combined their efforts in the first meeting of the All-State Orchestra last Thursday morning at the Music Building. After being organized the group split up and held sectional rehearsals in the afternoon. In the sectional rehearsals, tryouts were held to classify the students into their respective positions in their sections.

The orchestra held a two hour rehearsal, under Mr. Whitney's direction, in the evening at the Music Building. The initial work was started on the material that was to be presented in the concert Friday evening.

Following the rehearsal, a travelogue by Mr. Whitney was the highlight of a combined meeting of the Note, Cliff and Staff Club and members of the orchestra.

A two and one-half hour rehearsal was held by the orchestra Friday morning in Van Meter Auditorium, during which time the group worked diligently under the able direction of Mr. Whitney, to get the material into the best possible shape. The final two hour rehearsal was held in the afternoon to iron out the little flaws and to add the extra precision necessary in good music.

Numbers on the program were: Adagio for Strings, by Mendelssohn; Intermezzo from "Cavalleria Rusticana," by Mascagni; Little Norwegian Suite for Strings, by Erik Hansen; and Penlandia, by Sibelius. The concert, made possible by the young musicians, was enjoyed by a large audience.

The All State Orchestra was the highlight of the Kentucky All State Orchestra Clinic which was held last Friday and Saturday. The clinic was attended by fifty music teachers from twenty-three high schools throughout the state.

John Zurlin and Rubin Sher, of Louisville; and Eugene Grome, Emily Porter, and Adon Foster, of Western led discussions and gave demonstrations on the teaching problems of string teachers and orchestra directors.

Mr. Robert Whitney was the special speaker at the clinic banquet held at the Helm Hotel Friday evening. Dr. Gunderson, clinic chairman, presided over the banquet.

Saturday mornings session was devoted to sight reading of new music by the Western Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Adon Foster.

Pershing Rifles Provide Halftime Show At Bowl

Pate were: Jerry Martin, Rodney Chapman, Jim Callison, Ralph Posey, Charles Hood, James McMasters, James Daniels, and Robert Metzger.

Western Band Holds Nov. Meeting

The Western Band elected officers for the remainder of the year at meeting Monday afternoon, November 24. Gene A. Lawton was elected president and presided at the election of the other officers. James Jensen was named vice-president; Jeannie Warren, secretary; and Caesar Ricci, treasurer. A committee was appointed to investigate the possibilities of having a band party, and the other committees appointed at previous times were asked to report at the next meeting.

Injuries Fatal To Former Westerner

Funeral services for 34 year-old Harold Williams, former Western student, were held November 19, at Lafayette, Ind. Mr. Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Williams, 1644 Laurel Avenue, attended Western two years before entering the Bowling Green Business University, where he received a degree in accounting.

His wife, the former Betty Welch, attended Western from 1933 to 1941. His sister, Mrs. Nicholas Morgenstern, the former Kathleen Williams, was also a Western student receiving the AB degree in 1935.

Mr. Williams, comptroller at Purdue University, died of injuries received in a car accident in which three other Purdue business office employees were killed instantly. They were en route to Ann Arbor, Mich., to see the Purdue-Michigan game.

Western Grad Successful In Commercial Art Work

Miss Dorothy Grider, AB '36, from Bowling Green, has become successful in the field of commercial art in New York. The designer of many illustrations for children's books, she has created the pink and blue dogs and ballet dancers which have become trademarks of a famous greeting card company.

Recently Dorothy has returned to her first real desire, the fine arts. While on her first trip to Europe, she painted many scenes in oil and watercolor simply for the love of art without thought of commercial use.

Shows Work

The one place in the United States where the fine arts are most valued is the group of art galleries that line East 57th Street. Realizing this, Dorothy stopped at the Contemporary Galleries, 106 E. 57th Street, and inquired if they ever showed works of unknown artists. They replied that they did and that they were planning to have a showing of the works of young artists soon. She sent some samples of her work, and before long she received a phone call saying that the gallery had chosen the watercolor painting of the Notre Dame Cathedral.

A week after the exhibit had opened, Dorothy had another phone call. The Collectors of American Art wanted to buy her painting for the permanent collection.

The Collectors of American Art run an international grab bag of art from which every state, Mexico, and Europe pay dues to be long to this organization. Once a year there is a drawing at the Hotel Delmonico, where every member gets a work of art. Some member will get Dorothy's "Notre Dame," which will be reproduced in the catalogue along with the artist's biography.

Teen-Age Members Enrolled In Driving Contest

Charlie Vettner, AB '50, executive director of Tomorrow's Travelers, announced today that tremendous progress has been made over Kentucky in enrolling teen-age members for the State Fair's state-wide safe-driving contest for teenagers.

The announcement is to the effect that more than half of the schools of Kentucky have affiliated with Tomorrow's Travelers, and with December 31 as the deadline, indications are that 75 per cent of Kentucky's high schools will be teaching LIFE SAVING ON THE HIGHWAYS.

Approximately 1500 boys and girls from every section of the state have registered and are displaying their Tomorrow's Travelers insignia prominently on the windshields of their automobiles.

The state has been divided into 64 districts and 16 regions with the final contest being held at the State Fair in September.

More information on the contest may be obtained by writing to Mr. Vettner at his Louisville office, in the Jefferson County Armory.

First Student-Directed Play Presents Hilarious Comedy

Marking the first in a series of student-directed plays, "The Christmas Treat" was presented on Wednesday night, December 10, in the Kentucky Building as a part of the annual Western Players' Christmas program. The play was under the direction of Alice Allen, president of Western Players and a senior mathematics and English major from Sebre.

"The Christmas Treat" was a one-act play of a domestic episode in which a couple decides to give their servants a Christmas present, which is in the form of a visit to the theater. The motley assortment of servants, not being play-goers, complicate the situation into a hilarious comedy.

The characters were chosen by open tryouts. Bob Richardson, College Heights Herald editor and a senior from Louisville who is majoring in English and has been seen in other Western Players' productions, played the Master. The Mistress was played by Anne Kelly, a newcomer to the stage and an art major from Louisville.

The servants were played by the following: The Parlourmaid—Nan Doss; a junior English major from Russellville, who was seen in "Curse You Jack Dalton;" The Housemaid—Susanne Shurtz, a freshman elementary education major from West Point; The Useful Maid Mary Lynn Phillips, a sophomore elementary education major from Campbellsville; The Kitchenmaid—Mary Spalding Clements, a junior transfer student from Webster College in St. Louis, majoring in elementary education and on Owensboro; The Cook—Patricia Van Winkle, a freshman history major from Louisville; and The Odd Man—Richard Kirk, a freshman geography major from Louisville.

Those who helped on the production were Connie Smith, Patsy Ritter, and Margaret Peet, makeup; Maxine Watkins and Joanna Maples, costumes; and Paul Koenen, head of set-construction committee.

The project is a Western Players activity designed to give more students a chance to act and to give inexperienced students training in stagecraft.

The next play, "The Troubles of Young Love," is an original by Sanford Cox and is scheduled for January 14 at the regular Western Players meeting.

The Western Players announced at their December 10 meeting that their next field trip would be to see Christopher Fry's "The Lady's Not For Burning" in Nashville on December 11.

Eat Crow, U. of Kentucky! Western Has Had One For Twenty-Two Years

The University of Kentucky recently reported having in its possession an albino crow, which was supposed to be the first seen in Kentucky for the last fifty years.

The Kentucky Museum, in the Kentucky Building at Western, however, has had a full-grown albino crow on display for some twenty years. It was killed in 1930 by Frank Kister in the White Stone Quarry section of Warren County. Mr. Kister turned the crow over to the late Charles Enoch, a Bowling Green undertaker, who had it mounted (probably by Jones Bros. of Denver, Colo., although no records are available to support this) and it was on display for some time in the show window of Biggs and Aspley Hardware Company. It was later given to the Kentucky Building where it has been shown since.

In addition to the white crow, the Kentucky Museum has one complete and one partial albino squirrel (fairly common in this area), both killed in the late 1920's or early 1930's by Dr. Fridella Edwards, of Glasgow. There is also a white raccoon, female, killed by Raymond Ormour, on Barren River near Meadow, in Allen County, in December, 1941. White "coons" are somewhat uncommon, but not entirely unknown. The Museum also has what appears to be a partial albino ring-necked pheasant.

Anyone interested is invited to visit the Kentucky Museum and to see these white specimens, as well as the hundreds of natural-color birds and animals in the collection.

Fund Offers Fellowships

The Fund for the Advancement of Education is offering 250 Faculty Fellowships for the academic year 1953-54 to college teachers throughout the United States. According to the plan of the program it is designed to broaden their qualifications for teaching in their respective fields. The Fund, a division of the Ford Foundation, thus expects to strengthen college teaching in the nation.

A present 246 college teachers from forty-two states are at work on similar fellowships granted last spring.

Each fellowship grants approximately equivalent to the salary of the recipient plus additional expenses. As a rule, candidates are chosen from the thirty to forty-age group. Awards are available in the humanities, the social sciences, and the natural sciences.

Book Marks

By R. GARR

Books which every American should read are compiled by Nathan G. Goodman with the assistance of more than one hundred educated men and women whose names are in "Who's Who in America" and contains such interesting ones as Shakespeare's PLAYS, Plato's REPUBLIC, Poe's TALES and POEMS, plus many others furnishing reading pleasure.

Many of these wonderful books are in the college library.

If a person really loves books, he will wish to own some, having his own library of favorites.

The library, through a project to be begun this month, will give students and others an opportunity to purchase for a nominal sum, secondhand books. These will be duplicate copies of titles no longer needed in our collection, and rather than discard as is done in many libraries, it was decided to offer them for sale. And at twenty-five cents.

The most satisfying reward of ownership of books is the companionship one enjoys with great personalities, either real or fictional. For students and prospective teachers, however, there is the advantage of having books for collateral reading, and for assistance in a first teaching position when a library may not be near.

Dr. Schell Appointed As Senior Resident

Why in the world can't people forget about the black marks that work their way into the athletic record books?

The University of Kentucky has recently announced that they will not play basketball this season. The reason behind the move is, of course, the trouble that has been brought by the scandals which have hit Lexington in the past couple of years.

No one can take away from the fact that the scandals were a terrible blow to the sports world. Nor can anyone deny the fact that the men involved should be, and are being, punished severely. But, after the rulings are taken care of, and the guilty ones are punished, why can't people forget about the whole nightmare?

This sort of thing has happened before to the athletic world. How about the World Series of 1920 when seven players for the Chicago White Sox lay down and let the Cincinnati Reds defeat them for the Baseball Championship of the World? Those boys were punished, and although the team was called the Black Sox for a while, the whole thing soon blew over.

Jim Thorpe, probably America's greatest athlete, "made a mistake" back in 1906 by entering the Olympic games after he had received money for playing some minor league baseball. He has paid for his mistake many times since then, and despite this black mark on the record books the Olympic games are still held every four years as if it had never happened.

These are just two of the many scandals that have hit the sports headlines in the past, and it is very probable that there are more to come. Why then do they keep reminding us of what has just happened, and above all why are they trying to do away with the great American sport of basketball wherever they can?

To the ordinary football fan, it is the backfield and the ends that provide most of the punch that really makes football a game to watch. It is very seldom realized that probably the biggest punch for the team is held in the hands of the offensive and defensive lines. It is right there in the center of everything that the plays are made and executed. Whenever it is a drive over the line you can bet your life that the last men up off the ground will be the linemen.

Such men on the Western line

FEIX MAKES LITTLE ALL AMERICAN

In reward for his football wizardry, Western's great quarterback, Jim Feix, was named on the Little All-American second team, an honor well deserving of his record setting feat.

While leading the Hilltopper eleven to a brilliant record of 9 wins against a lone defeat, including the Refrigerator Bowl win over Arkansas State, "The Arm" marked up a national passing record with a 63.2 completion percentage for the season high among all collegiate passers.

Jimmy flipped 25 aeriels in the game with Arkansas State and completed 16 to a host of fine receivers for a total of 162 yards.

Thus, in 10 games this season, he threw 201 passes and completed 127 for 1,743 yards. This phenomenal record placed him high on many sportswriters list as one of the outstanding players in small college play this year. He missed setting an all time record by only 1.6 per cent.

In forward passing offense, Feix led the Toppers in attaining 2069 yards for an average of 208.9 yards per game, to rank them third in the nation in this department.

Jimmy's always the first to let you know that the other Western heroes made it possible for him to be honored. A fine tribute to a great team by a great team-mate.

Former students, 2nd Lt. and Mrs. Joe H. McFarland are living in San Antonio, Texas. Lieutenant McFarland is stationed there, and Mrs. McFarland is working as assistant to the librarian of St. Mary's University School of Law.

that were never seen by most onlookers as even vetting in the game. But who actually are the ones who make or break a backfield man in the offensive line: Warren Mahan and Captain Willard Price at the tackles, with Bo Cully and George Sauer at the guards and hard working Arnie Oaken at center. Gordon Ware also saw a lot of action at the offensive tackle position and took his share of the beating along with the rest.

After the offense moves the ball up the field it is up to the defensive team to hold them and force them to kick so the offensive can move again. Not only do these men take a terrific beating during the game, but also in practice, as the offensive unit runs against them day after day.

Such men as Ed Worley, Jim Phifer, and Jerry Passafiume at the tackles, with Guy Newcom and Marvin Satterly at the guards, and Walt Apperson or Tom Patterson at the center slot; they are the work horses of the team, and without them the offense would be just half as good as it is.

Many people have wondered just what happened on that last touchdown play against Eastern. The Maroons had just moved the ball to the five yard line on a long play, and the Big Red threw up an eight man line against them to keep them from scoring. Actually, Walt Apperson was supposed to try to go through and get the passer on this play, but when he started through, the big tackle from Eastern hit him and knocked him back into the end zone. When he picked himself up, he looked up and the ball was coming right at him.

After Walt got to the 30 yard line, he began to slow down a little bit, but it must be remembered that he and Max Stevens had just finished chasing down the Eastern runner on the play before. He was plenty tired. He slowed down a little more at the 50 to give Stevens and Jack Binkley a chance to form some interference. Finally when he saw that he had a chance of being tackled he flipped the ball back to Binkley, and then from this position on the ground watched Jack fight his way across the goal line.

Something took place on this play that makes Western the team they really are. Apperson has never scored a touchdown as long as he has played football through Junior high and high school and two years of college. He might have made it to the goal line on that play, but the important thing to him was not scoring that six points himself, but making sure that Western got the touchdown. It is this fact that there are no individualists on this ball club that makes them so great.

Start East With Three Victories Under Their Belt

The Hilltopper basketball team is off on their 1932-33 cage season, and although they require to start slow in their first three contests they give promise of one of the best seasons ever witnessed at this school.

The Toppers are certainly in for the roughest season they have known in a long while, and if they come out on top they will surely have something to be proud of. Western started off the season with a 76-62 victory over Kentucky Wesleyan, and they end it exactly three months from the opening date with the finals, we hope, of the OVC Tournament.

In that first game the Toppers got off to a slow start and had their usual first game raggedness as they barely stayed out in front for three quarters, and then finally began to move out ahead in the final frame for the final score. Tom Marshall was the high point man for this first contest with 23 points.

The game was played without the assistance of either Monie Beard or Art Spoelstra. Beard had injured his arm the day before in a practice session and Spoelstra was still recovering from his operation. Dick Smith took over the center spot and played an impressive game until he injured his foot in the first half which slowed him down to some extent. Taking over the guard position for the ailing Beard was Dyke Vest.

In the second game of the season the Hilltoppers traveled to Murfreesboro, Tennessee to take on Middle Tennessee State in a game which with the exception of one quarter was also below par as far as the ability of the team is concerned. Thanks to a very good third quarter the Big Red came out on top 57-57 before a packed house of enthusiastic fans.

Marshall was once again the leading scorer on the team with 25 points, but Dan King looked more like his old self as he dumped in 19 from his forward position.

Last Monday night the Bowling Green crowd was introduced to this year's Hilltoppers for the first time with a game against Morehead. The packed gym was awed from the start as the team trotted on the floor dribbling new colored basketballs. The pre-game warm up which was a typical Ed Diddle special was a real show and the home crowd was thrilled the full time as have been other crowds before which the Toppers have performed this year.

The Eagles did a good job of trying to make the Toppers look as bad as possible in their first of two clashes this week. The second one is scheduled at Morehead tomorrow night. This is the trip above all trips that the Hilltoppers hate. The main objective seems always to be to make us look as bad as they can and beat us if possible.

Win or lose they still have that long dreaded trip back to Bowling Green after the game. Especially

No Leisure Holiday Season For Hilltopper Squad On Eastern Trip

While the majority of the Western student body looks forward to the Christmas holidays as a chance to take a needed rest away from the college grind, a small group of students from the Hill look to these same holidays as a time to ply their trade as never before.

The students who make up the Western basketball squad, and the trade they ply is, of course, their nationally famous brand of basketball. An examination of what lies before the Hilltoppers clearly indicates that there will be little time for a breathing spell in the ensuing weeks.

The "big push" toward a high national ranking begins the night of December 16 when the Toppers begin their annual swing east by playing the always-dangerous University of Cincinnati Bearcats in the Cincinnati Gardens. Two nights later will find the Toppers facing one of the top-ranking teams in the nation, Seton Hall, in the most famous of all basketball playing sites, Madison Square Garden in New York City. On December 20, the Hilltoppers invade Convention Hall in Philadelphia for the final game of the eastern swing against St. Joseph's College of Philadelphia.

A long vacation following the return home will, end abruptly when the squad reassembles in Bowling Green for a week of practice preparatory to journeying to Oklahoma City Tournament. This tournament has some of the finest basketball teams in the nation entered. The tourney begins Monday, December 29, and runs through Wednesday, December 31.

As a final touch to the back-breaking holiday schedule, the Toppers travel to Louisville for a game with St. Bonaventure in the Jefferson County Armory on January 3.

THIS PASS SET UP WESTERN'S SECOND TOUCHDOWN—Quarterback Jimmy Feix prepares to unload an 11-yard shot to End Bubber Simpson (No. 56) that carried to Arkansas State's 30-yard line during Western's second scoring drive. The alternate receiver was Halfback Jim Sanford (40). Arkansas Halfback Buxy Gebert (22) is moving in to tackle Simpson. This play shows the protection his offensive line afforded Feix. The picture was snapped five seconds after the ball was centered. The nearest Arkansas player is still more than five yards from Feix.

quarter ended with the ball resting on State's three yard line.

On the first play opening the second quarter, Ray Nutter slanted over right tackle and went into the end zone. Sanders kicked the extra point and Western was on top for good.

Two punt exchanges and the Toppers struck again, moving 68 yards in nine plays. End Jack Binkley made two sensational catches for 11 and 8 yards in this drive. The last one to the 4 yard line. Sanford bulled his way over the right side for the score. Again Sanders converted and the half ended 14-6.

State Comes Back
State came back for the second half with strong determination. After taking the kickoff, they moved from their 20 to Western's 24. But here the Indians bogged down and the Toppers took over on their 28.

Six plays later the men of Clayton had another marker. The outstanding scoring run of the day climaxed this drive. Taking a hand off on a quick opener, Stevens broke over his left side, out maneuvered the secondary, and went 41 yards to score. Sanders kick was blocked and the score was 20-6.

The next two Western scores were set up by their crack defensive unit. Safety Bobby Bilyeu was the prime instrument both times.

Intercepting a State pass on his nine yard line, he lateralled to Stevens for an 18 yard return. After connecting on passes good for 9, 18, 35 yards, Feix sneaked the remaining two yards to score.

During the next 10 minutes Bilyeu intercepted another pass, this time in the end zone. Linebacker Tom Patterson grabbed one also and both halted State drives.

With seven minutes remaining in the ball game, Bilyeu took a punt on Arkansas's 45 and returned it 21 yards to the 24. Feix hit Joe Goodman for 8 yards. Watson went up the middle for the remaining 16 yards, carry a defender into the end zone with him.

Clayton flooded the field with reserves then. And State marched 67 yards for its second score. State's big ground gainer all day, Manuel Vidal, went over from the one.

Three plays later a Feix pass bounced off a Hilltopper's fingers and fell into the hands of Indian Halfback Jack Kolkus on the Western 26. Kolkus went the distance untouched.

If the Big Red gets beat, the trip will be like riding horses home from New York City.

The team won't be back for a game in the home gym until January 8, but that doesn't mean we should forget about them all together. It is those away games where the school spirit is really needed, and they like the spirit and enthusiasm and backing that can come from the students just as much as the football players do.

Rooters Send Team To Murray With Cheers

The Western football players were sent off on Friday, Nov. 21, for the Murray State game with more than just good wishes. Festivities began with a bonfire where many enthusiastic rooters gave out, with lusty exuberance to the cheers of the Hill. The band played the school songs and led the formation of the turning and twisting snake dance.

Although it was to be the last of regular season play, it would not have been known by the performance that was witnessed by the crowd of onlookers.

Butch Gilbert, BS '32, is teaching and coaching at Russellville.

Mr. Gilbert is a former Western football player.

THEY SATISFY AND HOW!

"I always smoked Chesterfields in college just like my friends" says New York secretary, Elizabeth Lydon, "and here in New York it seems like almost everyone smokes them."

AND NOW—CHESTERFIELD FIRST TO GIVE YOU SCIENTIFIC FACTS IN SUPPORT OF SMOKING

A responsible consulting organization reports a study by a competent medical specialist and staff on the effects of smoking Chesterfields. For six months a group of men and women smoked only Chesterfield—10 to 40 a day—their normal amount. 45 percent of the group have smoked Chesterfields from one to thirty years for an average of ten years each.

At the beginning and end of the six-months, each smoker was given a thorough examination including X-rays, and covering the sinuses, nose, ears and throat. After these examinations, the medical specialist stated . . .

"It is my opinion that the ears, nose, throat and accessory organs of all participating subjects examined by me were not adversely affected in the six-months period by smoking the cigarettes provided."
